The problem

Freelancers and indie operators usually don't fail from lack of skill — they lose deals and burn evenings because ops are scattered: leads in DMs, proposals in random Docs, "I'll follow up" living only in your head.

The BriefCore approach

A Notion-style system exported as Markdown/HTML you can paste into Notion/Obsidian or print as a desk pack:

Module (full kit)	Sample includes?
CRM Lite pipeline	✓ snapshot
Intake & discovery	Full kit
Weekly Review	Full kit
Proposal templates ×3	Full kit
AI prompt cards	✓ Card 1
Capacity board	Full kit

15-minute setup (do this once)

1. Pick one home for live data (Notion / Obsidian / Sheet / printed binder).
2. Import active clients into a table: Name | Offer | Stage | Next action | Due | $ | Notes.
3. Stages: Lead → Qualified → Proposal sent → Won → Active → Paused → Done/Lost.
4. Book a recurring Weekly Review (same slot every week).

5. Save the AI prompt cards so the next lead gets researched before the call.

That's enough to stop leaking follow-ups.

Stages that stay boring on purpose

Stage	You're here when...	Default next action
Lead	Inquiry or warm intro	Send intake / book discovery
Qualified	Budget + timeline + decision maker clear	Draft proposal
Proposal sent	Doc delivered	Follow-up day +3
Won / Active	Deposit or signed yes	Kickoff + milestones
Done / Lost	Closed	Log reason; learn pattern

Mini client card (copy this)

```
Client: _____
Offer: _____ Stage: _____
Next action: _____ Due: _____
Outcomes they care about:
1.
2.
Constraints (budget / time / stakeholders):
Log:
- YYYY-MM-DD -
```

Red-flag pause (2+ = slow down or decline)

- Won't share budget and wants a fixed quote tomorrow
- Decision maker never joins calls
- Scope grows every message; no written brief
- Free "test project" that looks like real work
- Net-90 / "pay after we get funded"
- Disrespect toward past freelancers

Polite decline: "Thanks — I don't think I'm the right fit for this scope/timeline."

Full kit expands this into intake forms, discovery agenda, and a /30 fit scorecard.

Page 3 — AI Prompt Card 1 (client research)

Rule: AI drafts research; you verify on the client's site before you put anything in a proposal. Don't paste confidential files into public tools.

Card 1 — Company snapshot (5 min)

You are a research assistant for a freelance/indie operator. Summarize [Company] for a sales discovery prep. Use only publicly plausible info and clearly mark guesses. Return:

- 1) One-paragraph what they do
- 2) Likely customers / ICP
- 3) 3 possible pains my offer ([YOUR OFFER]) could address
- 4) 5 sharp discovery questions
- 5) Red flags or unknowns to verify on the call

Keep it under 350 words.

How the full kit continues

After Card 1, the paid pack adds:

- Website/product critique prompts
- Competitor map
- Proposal outline from discovery notes
- Champion-forward email draft
- Kickoff risk register
- Capacity guardrail ("accept / reshape / decline")
- Weekly Review scoreboard + 3 proposal structures (fixed, retainer, audit→build)
